Douglas and Agua Prieta
The Aimee Semple Miracle
A New Church Idea
No More Apaches

By Arthur Brisbane

DOUGLAS, Ariz., and Agua Prieta, Mexico, Feb. 25.—This is written across the lines from Douglas, Ariz., in the director's room of the Agua Prieta Bank, on an Underwood typewriter, bought in the United States, and next to the bank's four-ton vault door, built by the Diebold Safe Co. of Canton, O. Mexicans spend their money freely on our side of the border, we ought to reciprocate more generously.

And you, when Westward bound, will do well to ask for United States route No. 80, known here as the Broadway of America, and stop to see Douglas and the world's richest copper mining district. Don't forget to cross to Cananea, Mexico, and get Mr. Wood, who is here there, to show you his mine, with ore running as high as 40 per cent copper. Arizona produces 40 per cent of all United States copper.

Douglas is first a copper smelting city, and second a battle center. And it has the only international airport in America, covering 1200 acres, part of it on each side of the border. It ranks in quality with the five finest airports in America.

The citizens of Douglas built it, and the biggest planes now flying can find room in its hangar. Young Americans should fly here, motor and fly on both sides of the line, explore and make their fortunes, or try to. Whoever buys real estate in Douglas, wisely, now for instance, will grow richer as time passes.

From the beautiful wide air field you see, just across the Mexican border, a strange mountain peak, called "Nigger Head," and forever memorable as the landmark that guided Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson home again from Mexico and there met that kidnaper her. It is hard to blame them, when you have seen how beautiful she is. But you forget all that, as you hear the story of her return, from long wandering through the burning desert, over mountains and through cañons. There the miracle began, fit to be compared with Mithras, Shadrach and Abednego, in their fiery furnace.

When Mrs. McPherson walked into Douglas, past the abandoned old adobe slaughter house, her delicate satin slippers, No. 14, were absolutely unimpaired by her wanderings over sharp rocks and desert sands. They were not even soiled, and when she, at the suggestion of a citizen, went to spend a few hours at the local hospital, saying to the citizen, "That's not a bad idea," she was not even thirty, although it was the hottest day of a hot summer.

Her courses were intact like her slippers and dainty dress. She preached at a great revival meeting that very night, in the open air of the fine park on 10th st. Needless to say everyone was there, and all joined in singing "Rock of Ages, Chief for Me," referring to the Nigger Head mountain range.

Clergymen should come to Douglas and study the "church park idea." An entire block, opposite the public park, is devoted to churches only, one on each corner. Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopalian, with a fine little church in the center, in which the devout may stroll and gossip, or argue fine points of theology, or sing for church time.

Every Sunday evening, in summer, all four congregations hold a non-sectarian meeting in the park opposite the churches. Four choirs combine to make the welkin ring, and the great crowd joins in, and four clergymen take turns preaching, one each Sunday, while the other three rest, or just sing. It is an idea that ought to be adopted everywhere.

The Catholic church, with a large congregation, is one block away, and the Mormon church, with no separate Christian Science church yet. But there will be. Meanwhile Christian Science meetings, regular, with earnest holdings of a kind that would unduly help all the other congregations.

Clergymen coming to study the system will stop at the new Gadsden Hotel, on Route 80. Mrs. Mackey, who runs the hotel, takes good care of them, feed them well, show them marvelous views of copper mines, and the wonderful stained glass windows and old pioneer ways. She has built that hotel big enough for any party that is in the way in Arizona, everything optimistic and with good reason. John Crowell, cashier of the Douglas Bank, deserves much credit for carrying through the Douglas airport, and Ygnacio Bolo, president of the Agua Prieta Bank, for the airport extension on the Mexican side. It is a fact that you have cheered your way to see the Mexican soldiers clearing the mountainside, very hard to chop, from the air field land.

REDS BATTLE POLICE ON COMMON, 8 SEIZED

This Red Took to Tree Like a Common Squirrel But Cops Halted His Chatter

COMMUNISTS APPARENTLY have been studying the habits of the squirrels on the Common in anticipation of fooling the police in the latter's efforts to prevent Red speeches there. Here we see Benjamin Saul, Communist organizer, chattering in the branches of one of the grand old elms. The regular inhabitants of the tree fled.

JUST AS THE OFFICERS thought they had the disturbers all quieted down, they discovered Saul up his tree and Saul, Crowley called for volunteers to go after the orator. Inspector William Galdston and Special Officers John Miller and Thomas Turley "shinned" up the tree to stop the wily Saul.

THE COPS PROVED that they, too, knew something about tree climbing, and Saul was soon displaced from his lofty perch. No damage was done to any of the parties, though Saul at one time was in imminent danger of losing his trousers and what little of dignity he had left. The crowd enjoyed the climbing contest and cheered the participants on with cries of "Throw him down!" (Staff photos.)

OFFICERS BEATEN IN WILD MELEE

Boston radicals battled the police wildly on the Common today, in the midst of a surging crowd of 3000 sympathizers and other spectators, before the rioting was quelled with the arrest of five men and three women.

Several policemen were roughly handled, one being knocked out by a blow on the chin as he led away an arrested radical and another being clawed and scratched by one of the women.

Three policemen climbed a tree to arrest a Communist who launched a speech from that perch after one radical after another had been hauled from a park bench which was being used as a rostrum.

Numerous fist fights started among the crowd of onlookers, as sympathy was voiced for the radicals by many and for the police by as many more.

A parade of boys and girls radicalized broke up the meeting and dispersing of the crowd. At Tremont and Boylston st., a man marching in the van of this parade was set upon by an unidentified man and a general disturbance followed, with great traffic.

$1,000,000 FIRE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Feb. 25.—A $1,000,000 fire destroyed the State pier today and menaced the waterfront as it crept toward adjoining oil tanks. The structure collapsed at the height of the blaze after a warning siren sent firemen scurrying for safety.

Large stores of bedding, oil and naphtha, unhanded yesterday from the State pier, were destroyed in the flames bringing an added danger to the firemen called on three alarms.

The pier was built in 1914 at a cost of $400,000, not including the work on the pilings to support it. It was commonly referred to as the million dollar pier.

25 Cats in House of Death

Twenty-five cats were found in the house at 7 Condon ct., where police discovered Miss Ellen Spencer, 65, dead in bed today.

For several years Miss Spencer lived alone in the house, going to work each day in a Cambridge laundry. When leaving the house she was in the habit of fastening a large padlock on her front door.

The morning when Max Cohen, a neighbor, noticed that the house was empty, he became curious and summoned the police.

2 GUARDS HELD BY RUM GANG

Landing of a rich cargo of choice liquors at Nantasket by a gang whose members believed they were working for Al Capone, notorious Chicago racketeer, was interrupted at daybreak today by Hull police.

The police rescued two Coast Guards from the hands of the rum-running gang, arrested the captain of the pair and seized 200 cases of whiskey valued at more than $150,000.

3 MILLS CLOSED IN STRIKE

By a Staff Correspondent
Lawrence, Feb. 25.—Three mills of the American Woolen Co. shut down today while officials sought settlement of the strike among 1100 employees.

The Wood, Ayer and Washington mills were ordered closed during a conference between mill agents and strikers, after the strikers had delivered an ultimatum that they would take no steps toward settlement until mounted police were withdrawn from the strike picket line.

John's 'All' Still is a Dime

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 25 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller bowed low last night as his memory, stirred by the strains of a violin in the hands of a master, carried him back nearly 40 years.

There was no ordinary how he made, but a regular oilman, and his opera scarf swept the dusty floor back-stage at his own private auditorium where Albert Spaulding, violinist, had just completed a recital.

Milling Crowd Surges and Stampedes on Common as Police Are Beaten in Red Riot fired with the descent of the police on the speech-makers.

Several of those arrested have faced courts before in connection with Communist demonstrations. Those booked at Lagrange station were:

William, 25, of East Springfield st., South End, charged with assault and battery on Special Officer Paul Crowley.

Dora Daley, 35, Waban st., Dorchester, speaking without a permit.

John Black, 25, Bradshaw st., Dorchester, speaking without a permit.

Harry Carter, 45, Meridian st., East Boston, making loud outcries in a public park.

Joseph Hubert, 45, Williams st., Chelsea.

Mark Lieberman, 14, Mill st., Dorchester.

Benjamin Saul, 31, of Walnut pk., Roxbury, the above three charged with speaking without a permit.

Stanley Johnston, 33, colored, of Shawmut ave., assault and battery on Patrolman William Gannon of station 13, South Boston.

Carter, who served a jail term for defaming Gov. Fuller in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration, was a Communist party candidate for governor last fall.

STARTED BY LIEBERMAN

Several scores of police in uniform and plain clothes and nearly 2000 onlookers were on hand at the time the time scheduled for the meeting in aid of the unemployed, called by the Trade Union Unity League and the Young Communist League.

Other police were being held in reserve at Mill st., Jay st. and Lagrange st. stations, ready to rush to City Hall, the State House and the Common.

From all sides, as to avoid the appearance of a parade, the rioters pressed through the crowd at the hour fixed for the demonstration, for which they had no permit.

After a whispered conversation, both Carter and Lieberman, the latter mounted a bench and began:

"Comrades, thousands of unemployed are starving. Are you going to let them die like rats?"

WARNED BY POLICE

Police and civilian photographers, sent there by Deputy Supt. Meade, under the leadership of Commissioner Hultman and Supt. Crowley, were taking down his words. Supt. Crowley, accompanied by Capt. Gallivan of station 4 and Special Officer Paul Crowley, then approached and warned Lieberman to stop.

The speaker repeated his words and was told he was under arrest. Lieberman was being led away by Patrolman Francis Gannon when he, allegedly Stanley Johnston, ran up and landed a blow squarely on the officer's chin. Gannon went down in the mud, his hat rolling off, and with that the rioting started.

In the midst of the turmoil, police after police were hurled at benches and tried to speak. As soon as one was hauled to the ground, another stepped up and began haranguing the crowd.

"We've got to fight, comrades!" shouted one above the din.

PERORS IN THE

The crowd, as shouting, some denouncing the police, others calling for a "Victory" march. The reserves were hastily sent to the scene, but to no avail. The rioters battled to disperse the crowd while scores of the onlookers fought with the police.

Meanwhile Patrolman Gannon got up and seized his prisoner, shouting, "March to the signal box." Other officers struggled to the same point with their prisoners. One policeman after another was set upon in attempted rescue of the prisoners, but other officers rushed into the riot and saved them.

Some confusion of order had been restored when Benjamin Saul, according to the police, was dispersed, haranguing part of the crowd from a limb of a tree near the Parkman handstand.

He refused to stop and refused to come down, and Special Officers William J. Goldstein, Thomas Stupley and John Miller went up the

Scared Legislators Blamed by Curran for Dry Law

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, today issued the following statement:

"The opinion of the Supreme Court makes it all the more clear that the Eighteenth Amendment was never approved by the people, but was put over on us by a handful of legislators elected on other issues and frightened into doing what they did."

"It is now time for the Congress to submit to the people the question of retention or repeal of this national prohibition law so that now, for the first time, the people may pass upon it."

Body of Dewey May Rest in Arlington

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Washington Post says it has learned the will of Mrs. George Dewey contains definite instructions for the removal of Admiral Dewey's body from its Washington Cathedral resting place to Arlington Cemetery.

Yesterday Mrs. Dewey's body was laid to rest in the Arlington National Cemetery. She died of pneumonia last March.

Paratyphoid Cause of Melba's Death

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Melbourne, Australia, today said the death of Dame Nellie Melba, the famous Australian diva, at Sydney, February 25, was officially to have been due to blood poisoning following a paratyphoid contracted in England.

How many union members there are in those mills, she did not say. But James Reid, national president of the union, who arrived here last night.

Agents of the union were planning to hold a meeting here last night to rally support for the strike. Police had refused them a permit for a meeting on the Common.

Picketing in the vicinity of the mills was quiet today compared with yesterday. Only one arrest was made and there appeared to be no real tension as there was yesterday.

On the move, Mrs. Berkman made her first appearance on the picket line.

RETURN IN METHUEN

The one arrest was Joseph M. Lemieux, 20, of Bedford st., a comb in the Ayer mill. He was taken from the Wood mill picket line on a charge of loitering in the vicinity of the mills.

A crowd of strikers gathered around and jeered the patrolman, but did not molest him.

At Methuen all six of the 100 employees of the Stetson Worsted mill were quiet today. They returned to work this morning.

Hotel Rent to Jump $300 if Liquor Sale Permitted Again

Worcester, Feb. 25 (AP)—A 10-cent lease of the Baystate Hotel signed here and filed in the registry of deeds, stipulated that, in the event the hotel again may be operated for the sale of wine, beer or liquor, the monthly rental will increase $300.

Bertram L. and Beate T. Handelman leased to Charles W. and Stiff of Saugus, beginning March 1.

NINE DEAD, $18,000 TAKEN

Dayton, O., Feb. 25 (AP)—Five men armed with sawed-off shotguns held up Norman W. Guernsey, manager, and eight employees of the central branch of the Union Trust Company in the heart of the business district today and escaped with between $18,000 and $20,000.

The holdup came 10 minutes after the bank opened. Three men who entered the bank while their two companions waited in a machine at the curb forced the bank employees into a rear room. "While one stood guard the other two scooped up all available cash."

Taking off their masks, the bandits walked leisurely from the bank, entered the automobile and drove away. The police, in an armored car arrived in time to see the bandit car speed away.

The police started in pursuit but lost track of the bandit car.

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 25 (AP)—Three robbers held up the Hastings National Bank today, bound and gagged 13 employees, including three men, took $7,173 and escaped.

How many of the 800 strikers have joined the union, which has been organizing here for a month, is impossible to tell. In the vicinity of the mills this morning there were only 100 or 200, as compared with 5000 yesterday, although only 1500 or 2000 workers, the same number as yesterday, reported for work before the mills shut.

The peace conference was expected in the greater part of the day. Miss Berkman said by the demands of the union strikers.

STRIKE PARLEY AT LAWRENCE

Walter A. Lamont, Ernest A. Johnson and Emil J. C. Cruise.

No other persons were allowed in the conference, which was held in the city council chamber. Miss Edith Berkman, organizer for the Communist union sponsoring the strike, accompanied the committee to the hall but remained outside the meeting room.

Mayor Michael A. Lander and the citizens' committee were present, awaiting the outcome.

Miss Berkman admitted that the original demands of the strikers had been refrained, but she would not say along what lines.

The only original demands which the company had refused to meet were recognition of the N. W. U. and time-and-a-half pay for overtime work. The latter it was rumored, the company was prepared to grant, but would refuse to recognize the union.

This official feeling against the union organization was reflected among the ranks of the employers when the first split in the ranks occurred.

WEAVERS FOR PEACE

About 125 weavers of the Washington mill, not associated with the union, marched to the police station and asked Public Safety Commissioner Carr and City Marshall O'Brien for protection from agitators while they held a meeting.

They were allowed the use of the guard room over the courts. There they voted unanimously not to join the N. W. U. but to form an organization of their own and present two demands to the mill.

Time-and-a-half pay for overtime work and return of the 10 percent bonus for night workers.

The meeting broke up and those who attended said they planned to resist other strikers' non-members of the union, in their strikes. They represent the more conservative group among the striking employees.

U. S. Women Not Slaves to Paris Style, Says Star

New York, Feb. 25—American women are no more slaves to the modistes of Paris:

The authority for the statement was Natascha Rambova Valentin, widow of Rudolph Valentino, film star, who returned yesterday from a Paris business trip.

American women have learned that they can buy clothes at any American store. But they are not governed by them, she said, but dictated by their own personalities regardless of the dictates.

Natascha, who before her marriage was Winifred Hildout, daughter of the famous king, arrived aboard the Ile de France.

Betty Nuthall Glad That Helen Will Compete

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—Betty Nuthall, who is married, today holds the American Women's Lawn Tennis Championship.

She will return to America to compete for another world crown, which Wimbledon champion, Mrs. M. J. Moody.

"I am crossing the Atlantic to defend my championship, and nothing will keep me away," she said.

Upon his return to the world, Miss Moody will play again, because her abduction came as a surprise last year.

"But I wish people wouldn't talk rubbish," she said. "I don't do about Helen being afraid and privately keeping out. Helen has beaten me when we have played, and what should the champion of Wimbledon, who really is the champion of the world, be afraid of?"

Venezuela Ready to Fight General Strike

Former Premier Eusebio Venesio of Greece, whom Woodrow Wilson described as one of the greatest statesmen in Europe, has fully recovered from his recent illness and is continuing his active career.

Upon his return to office he issued a manifesto to workingmen, saying the government was resolved to defend the constitution, and if necessary would use force to maintain it.

Former Venesio has sympathy with striking civil servants.

He is long a leader in public life. The premier has endured the rigors of exile as well as the strain of many crises.

of the two guards held prisoner at gunpoint for more than two hours before Olson and Smith rescued them.

GUARDS TRAPPED

Joseph and the other guards were riding in a car used for patrolling the vicinity of the shore when they were halted by three armed men between Black Rock Cove and Green Point.

They were held prisoner by the road while two dories landed several loads each from a large power boat which waited half a mile off shore.

Before the loading of the trucks was finished, Patrolmen Olson and Smith arrived and as the alarm was given, the truck sped off, nearly running down the officers as they rounded a curve in the road.

The liquor, which had been fortified, but not loaded on the trucks, was found on the beach. The dory had been abandoned and the power boat, which the Coast Guard had seen offshoot, had sped away.

GREENE ON SAIL

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—David Work Griffith, film director, today characterized a $500,000 damage suit charging criminal assault, filed against him in Los Angeles by Film Studio, actress, as "absurd" and "without foundation in fact."

Griffith said he could not recall having met Miss Strick, although he might have been among the thousands he interviews every year. As to the date of the alleged assault, he said a picture "Abraham Lincoln" had been completed before June 1936, and that he would have no reason to summon her for a part at that time.

Capone, Denying His Rumanian "Father," Says He Will Surrender to Police

Chicago, Feb. 25 (AP)—Alphonse Capone, "tear of Chicago gangs," slipped into the Federal building a half hour before his scheduled arraignment on a contempt of court charge today and eluded the besieging throng of people who clogged the sidewalks about every entrance.

Capone, accompanied only by his attorney, William F. Waugh, went directly to the courtroom of U. S. District Judge Wilkerson and evaded the battery of cameramen and reporters who were waiting for him.

It was his first appearance in a Chicago court for a year, and he was in jovial mood.

He laughed at the widely published reports that he had returned from Florida to marshal his forces in the primary and aldermanic elections yesterday.

Judge Lyle made an issue of him, and the people answered him, he said.

MAN CONVICTED IN VICE CASE GETS 3 YEARS

Max Hoffenberg, 25, of Fenelon st., Dorchester, the first person convicted in the crusade against the Boston vice ring, was sentenced today to three to six years at hard labor in State prison.

Sentenced was passed by Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall in Suffolk Superior criminal court.

Hoffenberg was convicted by a jury of three charges involving a Dorchester school girls whose subsequent arrests have resulted in the arrest of a woman and six other men.

Two of the three charges were filed and he was sentenced on the most serious for which there is a maximum of life imprisonment.

"OCEAN OF EVIDENCE" Hoffenberg, a sign painter, had no previous criminal record.

She Sues Duke

HELENA ZIMMERMAN, who has been filed by the former Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati against the Duke of Manchester. They were married in 1900.

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Duke of Manchester, holder of a title dating back to 1715, was served today with papers in a suit for divorce brought by his American-born wife, the former Helena Zimmerman, daughter of Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati.

In addition to the dukedom, he holds the titles of the Earl of Manchester, Viscount Mandeville, and Baron Montague of Kimbolton. His full name is William Augustus Drogo Montagu.

Possessor of some 4,000 acres of land, the Duke owns four magnificent country houses. Kimbolton Castle, St. Nott's, Tandragee Castle, County Armagh, Ireland, Stanbury Park, Huntingdon, and Kilmorie Castle, Cheshire.

He also added his belief that men who have served sentences for such offenses should be under some kind of state supervision after their release from prison.

The eighth arrest in the crusade was made by John J. Connelley, 32, of St. Nicholas st., Back Bay, was taken in custody after arrest of several days.

LONG SKIRTS DECREED FOR ROYAL COURTS

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—This year's debutantes at royal court will wear long skirts, it was revealed today, with announcement by the King and Queen of approved designs for the four presentations to take place at Buckingham Palace.

The skirt terminates just above the ankle and trains will not be more than two yards long. The approved design, besides those for debutantes, include one for chaperones, another for matrons and skirt hanging in three folds and a bodice of the fashionable sheath-like shape.

The gown to cut low in front with rounded décolletage. The shoulder straps are ornamented with laced ruff effects and the debutante shown in the design wears white gloves reaching the elbow and carries a little Victorian parasol.

One of the designs for older women is carried out in a green and white design in damask. This skirt fits closely, outlining the shape of the bodice. The bell is at the natural waistline and the bodice falls below it in four long points.

SKIRTS ARE LONG. For older women there is a gown of blue material with a sash of diaphanous running across the bodice. For married women being presented there is a design of flowered material in the fashionable pinkish brown, with square cut bodice and full skirt with a gold-trimmed train.

All skirts fall to about the knee length, just revealing the feet. The queen's first presentation takes place May 19. The others are on May 20 and June 9.

WEST POINTER ENDS LIFE AT BROCKTON

Brockton, Feb. 25—A West Pointer graduate whose army career was shattered by ill health took his life today by illuminating gas while his mother waited downstairs for him to join her at breakfast.

He was Gordon Gibson Peck, 24, an honor man at Brockton high school in the class of 1924 and a member of the Phi Kappa Phi in the class of 1925.

FOUND DEAD IN ATTIC. He then accepted a post as estimating engineer for the city of New York, but again his health failed him.

Today, when his mother had waited for him to join her downstairs, she went to call him and found his body. The former officer's father is an executive of a shoe company.

San Francisco, Feb. 25 (UPI)—Another man was dying with a prohibition agent's bullet in his back today, and violence and gunplay were again added to the long record of dry law enforcement.

Manuel Perry, 46, father of three children, was shot by William A. Long, federal prohibition agent, and he was shot without provocation, according to his dying statement.

Society Woman in London Keeps Fit on 'Week-End Diet'

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—The fashionable woman who diets now eats just as she pleases from Monday morn to Friday eve.

On Saturday, she drinks a cup of sugary tea and eats half an apple and a small slice of thin, dry toast. Her luncheon consists of another apple, followed by a glass of milk and soda water.

'DOCTOR,' HELD AS FRAUD, FLEES

Worcester, Feb. 25—Dr. Charles Robert Elton, arrested as a medical impostor, was defaulted today in district court, while the woman charged with poisoning as his wife was placed on probation. The alleged bogus doctor had served as a member of the Worcester State Hospital medical staff since November. His arrest yesterday came following receipt of information that he was not a physician, but a former convict.

A charge of perjury in connection with his obtaining State certification in medicine was lodged against Elton, but after remaining for several hours in a police cell he was bailed in $1000.

Gandhi for Peace, He Tells U. S. Friend

New Delhi, India, Feb. 25 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi today sent this cable to his friend, John Haynes Holmes, New York minister.

"As a civil resister, I should strive for peace as I must hold myself in readiness for war. If India comes into her own it will be the largest contribution to world peace."

Bridge Table in Court as Aid in Murder Trial of Rich Widow

THE "BRIDGE" MURDER TRIAL is on at Kansas City, with a beautiful widow, Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, the prisoner at the bar. John G. Bennett, the slain man, and his wife were partners. They opposed Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman. Bennett failed to make a four-spade bid. Mrs. Bennett shot him.

SPADES CAUSE OF IT ALL. For the first time in history a bridge table—cards—pencil—score cards may be used in the murder trial. The prosecuting attorney insists they will be necessary to carry on a proper case against Mrs. Bennett. The defense insists on a married-man jury.

THE MURDERED BRIDGE playing husband, John G. Bennett refused to bid high enough in spades. He was 36 and wealthy manager of a perfume company. (International Newsweek photos.)

FATAL BRIDGE HAND REPLAY BEFORE JURY

Kansas City, Feb. 25.—The jury which is to hear the case of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, accused of killing her husband over a bridge game, is expected to be assembled today. Opposing attorneys, fighting a cautious battle in choosing the 12 men who will sit in the case, have already devoted two days in questioning veniremen.

WILL TAKE STAND

The 35-year-old defendant, dressed in black and pale of face, watched the proceedings calmly. Her counsel, headed by former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, indicated she would be placed on the stand to relate details of the shooting.

Prosecutor Hill intimated that a bridge table would be set up in the courtroom, and with the aid of Mrs. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, guests of the Bennetts when the slaying occurred, he would endeavor to replay the hand that precipitated Bennett's death.

SLAPPED WIFE'S FACE

"You're a hum bridge player," Hoffman quoted Mrs. Bennett as saying to her husband. Angered, Bennett reached across the table and slapped his wife's face several times.

"Only a cur would strike his wife in front of guests," Mrs. Bennett shouted. The defense is expected to attempt to show Bennett was shot in a struggle over the possession of a revolver. One unusual angle of the case is that the State's chief witness, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, and the defendant's mother, Mrs. Alice R. Adkins, are friendly to the defense. They were the only persons present in the apartment when the shooting occurred.

By the way, how strange are contrasts in history. By the Nigger Head Mountain range that was Mrs. McPherson's guiding cloud of smoke and pillar of fire, Pancho Villa, the powerful Mexican bandit, came marching to the American border, on his way, as he thought, to conquer the State of Sonora.

But Sonora is a business state, believes in mines, farms, cattle, factories, good roads, not at all in bandits. The home of former President Calles is here in Agua Prieta, and here Villa met his match. Later he met Senor Barras, whose property had been destroyed, and relations killed by Villa. Barras waited patiently for six days, with a few friends, in a house that Villa was sure to pass, sooner or later.

Villa did not pass, he stopped there, never went farther. Barras stepped out into the road, opened fire, and one of Villa's automobile party of six got away. It was not Villa.

When you come here, traveling along the southern border line, perhaps carefully ignoring the Mexican cases across the line at Agua Prieta, Naco, Nogales, Juarez and elsewhere, do not fail to see the wonderland rocks, 60 miles north of Douglas. The sharp, marvelously colored peaks are left standing by erratic erosion, as Cretaceous apertures of the crabs.

They should be described in detail, and that is also true of things done by the vanished Apaches, things that made their extermination necessary, but this is long enough now to annoy any managing editor.

An arrangement between Mexico and the United States, permitting troops of either country to cross the border at any time when chasing Apaches, made the extermination possible. Also the capture of their big chief, Hieronimo. United States soldiers got him on Mexican soil.

If you weep for the poor Apaches, not one left alive, Ygnacio Soto, president of the Ygnacio Soto Bank, will not weep with you. Apaches caught his grandfather, long ago, made him walk in his bare feet through cactus, after removing all the skin from the soles of his feet, then threw him over a cliff.

All of Senor Don Ygnacio Soto's sympathy for Apaches could easily pass through the eyes of a needle.

For information about Douglas, its prosperous present and certain future, write to A. C. Crouch, president of the Chamber of Commerce; to James Logie, owner, or John A. Curry, editor, of the Douglas Daily Dispatch, a good newspaper.

'BIG BILL' WINS EASILY IN QUIET ELECTION

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Mayor Thompson has been re-nominated for a fourth term. His plurality over Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, his nearest opponent, is indicated at 65,000 votes.

Alderman Arthur F. Albert ran a poor third. George K. Schmidt and Eugene McCaffrey merely ran. A. J. Cermak won the Democratic mayoralty nomination virtually without a contest. He was opposed by J. B. De Vosey.

Andrew J. Schultz and James A. Kearns were running a close race for the Republican nomination for city treasurer. Schultz was backed by the mayor's organization. Kearns had the support of Senator Densen's group.

City Clerk Patrick J. Smith overwhelmed his six opponents with an avalanche of votes. He, too, was the mayor's choice.

As with Cermak, the Democratic organization's candidates for city treasurer and city clerk were easily. They are Aldermen Edward J. Keefe and Peter J. Brady, respectively.

The $54,000 worth of bond issues submitted were approved, incomplete figures indicate.

Superior Court Judge Harry E. Lewis was re-elected.

It is easy to make out a situation in Chicago that does not exist. The last election a lot of stories of violence were sent out over the city. Similar stories will probably be sent out about this primary election.

POLICE HAVE IT EASY
Here is a summary of actual facts, taken from the police records, and it is a summary of this kind.

It is taken of an election in any large city in the United States. It will be shown that Chicago's elections are free from those of any other city only in the striking absence of serious violence.

Chicago's record for the day turned out today to amount to this total:

The blooded nose and one official police officer looking on a charge of attempted fraudulent voting.

Not a shot was fired at or near the 1887 precinct polling place; not a worker or candidate was kidnapped; not a ballot box was stolen.

And yet, more than half a million persons voted and there was much bitterness of feeling among the supporters of the three leading Republican candidates for the mayoralty nomination.

And in the 36 wards where some candidates had contested for election and workers had campaigned for and against them with a vigorous partisanship.

JUST A QUARREL
The single casualty of the day was Harry Drummond, secretary to Alderman Eugene J. Nasser of the 36th ward.

He became involved in an argument with workers for a rival candidate and was knocked in the nose before police could interfere. A police report was taken of the incident but there seemed to be no necessity for arrest.

The only individual arrested for election misbehavior in John S. Maguire, whom police seized in a polling place on the 15th ward after election officials caught him violating under a spurious name.

"But it was my cousin's name," he explained, "and my cousin isn't able to vote today so I thought I'd do it for him."

Mayor Thanks W. R. Hearst for Victory of Principles

Chicago, Feb. 25 (UPI)—After a sufficient number of precincts had returned to enable Mayor Thompson to determine the extent of his victory, he sent in a long distance call to William Randolph Hearst in California.

The mayor announced his nomination, and when he had been congratulated by Mr. Hearst, he added:

"I won through on our principles of driving internationalism and prohibition out of the Republican party. There will be 100,000 more votes cast today than the last election, and I want to thank you now that our principles have once more been approved."

ROPE CUT IN 2, THIEF KILLED

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Victor Laurie, a seaman turned burglar, died today from injuries received when he fell from a window of a dentist's office on the fifth floor of a 402 ft. building.

The rope Laurie was using to let himself down from the roof was saved in two by friction against the sharp window sill.

His "look-alike," Ella Warner, 21, hurried to a restaurant to call help. When detectives arrived they found the couple in the courtyard. Laurie's head resting in the woman's lap. They were going to be married, said, as soon as they got enough money.

Detectives believe Laurie is the burglar who has stolen thousands of dollars' worth of platinum and gold from dentist's offices in the midtown district lately.

Miss Warner was arrested on a charge of acting in concert with the burglar.

One of many Reasons Why MUELLER'S is America's... Largest Selling Brand of Macaroni Products

Thousands of letters are received every year by the makers of Mueller's Macaroni Products. Some praise the deliciousness of these fine foods—their better taste and flavor. Others comment on the unusual lightness and fluffiness of Mueller's Products. Still others mention the better health enjoyed by all the family when Mueller's Products are served often. Some mention the fact that Mueller's cooks in less time and thus makes a delicious meal easy to prepare.

It all comes down to this:—There must be a reason why Mueller's is America's largest selling brand of macaroni products. There is a reason—not merely one, but many. Mueller's Macaroni, Spaghetti and Elbow Macaroni are made from farina—the heart of the wheat. Mueller's Egg Noodles contain only selected fresh eggs and a choice blend of flour. All Mueller's Products are made by exclusive methods that insure lightness, fluffiness and easy digestibility. The taste is better. The healthfulness is unsurpassed.

Perhaps you, like Mrs. Bradburn, have been having disappointing results with your macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodle dishes. Then try Mueller's! A delightful surprise awaits you. Your grocer has Mueller's or can get it for you.

Next Week is Macaroni Week

From March 2 to March 7 you are particularly urged to become acquainted with the deliciousness and healthfulness of macaroni products. This week has been designated as Macaroni Week. Make it a point, during Macaroni Week, to ask for MUELLER'S when you order macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles from your grocer.

For over sixty-three years, the makers of Mueller's Macaroni Products have kept faith with the American housewife. You may be sure that this faith will not be broken.

To Whom it may Concern:—
I am enclosing a coupon requesting a copy of your recipe book. I want to tell you why I always use Mueller's Products. In making Macaroni and Grits, I have used several different brands of macaroni, but my husband was never satisfied with it until I used Mueller's macaroni. One brand was tough, another had no flavor + another just tasted according to him, but when I used Mueller's he declared it to be splendid. I will certainly appreciate a copy of your recipe book suggesting ways + giving directions for making other dishes using your products.

It was Sam who persuaded Mary to do "Kiki." It was Sam who wrote the adaptation of "Taming of the Shrew," and it was Sam with whom Mary was discussing her next story.

I NEVER THINK of "Daddy Goes A-hunting" without remembering how lovely Marjorie Rambeau was in the stage play. I seem to recall Ethel Barrymore, who had just had a tremendous success in "Declasse," also a Zoe Akin's play, rushing backstage to congratulate Marjorie. Paramount has bought the same play for Ruth Chatterton, and it is going to be one of her coming pictures.

PROBABLY NO ONE will be more surprised than Nick, the Greek himself, to know that he is the hero of a film play. An original story has been written featuring Nick at First National Studios with Edward Robinson who played "Little Caesar" in the colorful role of the Chicago gang boss.

HERE. THERE and everywhere in Hollywood we pick up the news that Edmund Breese is in "Young Sinners" at the Fox Company. Mr. Breese surprised everyone this last week by announcing that 19 years ago he made his first talkie. I remember the first talkies that were made by Les De Forrester and I thought they were pure bad. Norman Foster had put Tom Douglas will play "Confessions of a Co-Ed." Paramount's reason for the switch is Tom Douglas looked too much the type of Phillips Holmes, who has the lead.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random. MARION DAVIES entertaining LADY MILFORD HAY and MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT. GROVER WHALEN, former New York police commissioner, playing tennis with EILEEN PERCY and CLAIRE WINDSOR. ELMER FRYER, First National's ace photographer, Michael King North, is the first to arrive. He's followed by REBE DANIELS, FIFI DORSAY visiting NOAH BEERY's mountain resort and winning the admiration of the hostess, MARY MONTGOMERY. CARENCE BROWN, flying North, REBE DANIELS and BEN LYON taking their trip the same way. DOROTHY MACKAIL, dressed attending a performance of "Once in a Lifetime," ARTHUR CAESAR with a fresh brand of jokes at the Coconut Grove. MR. ROBERT LIGONAT, visiting from the States, being the puzzle expert of Hollywood. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Dorothy Gordon, who appeared in Boston as soloist with Ernest Schelling last Saturday morning, will be heard in a "Young People's Concert Hour" at the Repertory Theater next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Heart Melodrama News brings a variety of interesting world events to the screen this week at the Regent.

On Thursday, crowds are shown entering the State House to pay tribute to the late President.

Another exceptional item has been secured for the Regent's broadcast, in which the Pope is shown visiting the Vatican.

Other scenes show little George Luntz in the words of the High Priestess, later to be fathered by O'Donnell of Holy Land.

At the State, vacationists are shown in a group of scenes in the form of harmonies. Bill Denny, who is appearing in the picture, is directed by Karl Korschel at the New York State Fair.

With each reel as fuel instead of the usual gas, the picture produces hundreds of tiny little spectacles in preparation for the Regent's audience.

A thrilling horse race at Agua, Canada, and the Village, and the Regent's special celebrations in Nice, France, are shown.

Other scenes show the Regent's great figures and magnificent

Adaptation of Edna Ferber's novel to the screen proved an exceedingly difficult task. At last Howard Estabrook, Radio Pictures scenarist, thought so after three months' work on the novel.

"Due to the popularity of the novel and the millions of Ferber's readers, it was necessary to adhere closely to the original theme and plot," he said. "I had to eliminate matter irrelevant to the hours' visual and audible presentation of the story."

To translate the Ferber editorial style into dialogue, and to make the story of a woman a major issue into a commonwealth skyscraper without using the word, required a high degree of concentration.

However, I had marvelous help. I had a superb script supervisor, the director, and Richard C. Starz.

Trader Horn's Metro-Goldwyn picture is a vivid drama of the adventures of a young man, on the night at the Majestic, was a picture that required almost as much of the camera as the motion picture camera itself would juggle to film in the wild jungles of Africa. The picture, however, has many factors entered into it. The players had to resemble the real thing in color, in, too, perfect health and endurance to withstand the hardships of the trip. The greatest feat made to film a picture was necessary. And, also, the picture was made to regard it as a great adventure story.

Harry Carey, well-known western hero, was chosen for the role of the young man. He is a great actor and sportsman and a picture of any kind.

Trader Horn's picture, however, was considered for the picture by his work as the South American explorer, "The Bridge Across Luis Rey."

Trader Horn, who plays Nina, is a young woman in every respect blonde as more nearly as possible. The picture, "Trader Horn's" description of the adventures of a young man, who traversed Africa

Benefit for Hospital Popular

Society Folk Attend Show at Plymouth; Many Dinner Parties Held

"THE MAN IN POSSESSION" proved the Mecca for society last evening at the Plymouth Theater where those interested in the Infant's Hospital gathered to see the latest offering of the Professional Players. Many dinner parties preceded these popular Tuesday evening performances and a large dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Howard I. Rogers in honor of Miss Elizabeth Sawyer at their home in Chestnut Hill.

AMONG THE GUESTS WERE the Misses Anne Warren, Ellen DeNormande, Katherine Duran, Frances Williams, Frances Gardner, Martha Means, Mary Parker, Frederick Robinson, Robert O'Brien, John A. Blanchard, David Cheever, Jr., Samuel Huntington, Volcott, Jr., George Johnson, Jr., John Henshaw, Jr., Nelson Aldrich, Charles Cunningham, Frederick Paul, and Thomas W. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers also attended the theater with the young people.

MRS. SAMUEL WARREN, one of the committee of the Infant's Hospital, will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner to be given on March 12 among them Mr. and Mrs. Howard I. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis, chairman of the committee, attended with Mrs. C. Davis's mother, Mrs. Henry Nichols, Mrs. Edward Bigelow, another member, arrived with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Deane. This concludes the series of plays for this season, and the committee for the Infant's Hospital announces that a goodly sum has been realized, enough for a small addition to be added to the present building, which is very much needed.

AMONG THOSE NOTICED in the audience last evening were Mr. and Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott, Mrs. J. Lewis, Mrs. Wadsworth Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin T. Sordwell, Mrs. Frederick Moley, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Borden, the Arnold Stanswells and the Walter Stanswells, Mrs. M. Pradigian, Winthrop, Miss Barbara Bremer with George Moulton, Miss Louise Fessenden with Henry Fessenden, Mr. and Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth and their daughter, Miss Evelyn.

OTHERS ATTENDING WERE Miss Letitia Orlandini, Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., Miss Helen Warren and Miss Lorna Livermore, Mrs. Charles Cotting, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Means with the Marshall Paysons, Mr. and Mrs. William Ladd with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deane, Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Mr. and Mrs. T. Tucker Burr, the Francis Appletons, Mrs. James Jackson with her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stockton, Mrs. Arthur M. Beale, the Dudley Howes with their daughter, Miss Catherine, Miss Mabel Bradley and many of this year's debutantes. "The Man in Possession" is a clever little play with a French flavor.

Vincent Executives Meet to Complete Annual Play Plans

AN EXECUTIVE MEETING of the Vincent Club is being held today at the home of Miss Elizabeth Sawyer at Chestnut Hill. Miss Gibson is secretary of the Vincent Club and the meeting will be held in the interests of the show, "Vincent Voodoo" which will be staged at the Arlington Theater on March 19, 20 and 21 with matinees on Thursday and Friday. Tickets will go on sale at Andrews' Shoe Store on Washington at and at Herrick's about the 10th of March.

Hats for General 'Gadabout' Use

By ANN ARDEN

TRUE TO the tradition of tailored simplicity is the hat for general gadabout use. Where does it differ from other years' hats, you ask? In many ways. First of all, the straw used is more supple and more varied. They are manipulated with astonishing skill. Crowns are different. Brims are different. Simplicity rules, true, but so does individuality.

THE SMALL hat is generally conceded to be the logical first choice for the spring wardrobe, and the flexible, shiny, rough straw, off-the-face, whether brimmed or draped, is the smart hat for immediate wear.

DRESSMAKERS' tricks and the collector's technique have been borrowed by the milliners in their manipulation of materials used, and hats are now made to suit any mood-romantic hats, turbans swathed with the art of the 1830's, tilted brims and bandeaus, almost Watteau-like berets with the fullness pulled forward to be just over one eye, bonnets with streamers and miniature marquis tricornes, suggestive of powder and patches.

THERE is no center of interest in the hats of today, they being fascinating from all angles. Much shawlier than hitherto, they rest lightly on the head, and are no longer delectably binding. The outlines are soft, whether they are brimmed or brimless.

THE CHIC toque pictured is a model from Caroline Reboux, a straw, rough but flexible, and lined green. It is decidedly close-fitting, the cuff brim posed high in front, looped on side, and held by small black and green composition ornaments.

THE SCARF of red fox makes a softening frame, and adds color contrast.

THE SLIGHTLY larger hat shown is a model from Marie Guy in dark blue rough straw, its brim sharply turned back front, draped on right side, dipping on left, where the accent is two white gardenias and their crisp green leaves.

GARDENIAS more than hint of spring, and are smart repeated on your fur coat, defying the whiteness of its snow continuing to rule our climate. White touches are so very smart just now in jewelry, trimming, gloves and scarfs.

WE RECOMMEND either of the hats pictured as a grand pick-up for any fashionable lethargy you may be suffering about this point in the social whirl.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, millinery customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American on the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WJZZ.

DADDY OF THE YD

An Intimate Story of the Life of General Clarence R. Edwards

This is the eighth in a series of articles on the life of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards.

By HARRY A. BENWELL

General Edwards got away to a head start in organizing the Yankee Division by securing advance copies of the new tables of organization, which showed radical changes in the makeup and personnel of military units.

Armed with these tables he established headquarters at 25 Huntington ave., and outlined the conditions which were to be met by all organization commanders affected.

Also present were Maj. George H. Bullen of the General Staff, who had brought the tables of organization, and Col. George A. Simonds, Jr. W. Beacham, Jr. P. Hobbs, Jr. W. Case and C. M. Dowell, who had been assigned from Washington.

As was to be expected, considerable opposition was met when it was learned that National Guard organizations, many of them with long and noteworthy records, were to be broken up.

There were other complaints also, but in each case General Edwards' fairness, his willingness to explain and his sympathetic attitude did much to smooth out the difficulties.

Governors Aid General Finds Troops Only Fairly Well Equipped

He had taken the governors of all the New England States into his confidence, and they gave him the heartiest cooperation. Nevertheless it was a tremendous task, and the general and his assistants put in long, strenuous hours.

He found the National Guard well equipped with rolling stock and animal transport, and a shortage of clothing and other supplies had been obtained when the commander of the North-eastern Department had ordered large quantities to be prepared.

Gen. Edwards had ordered official notification to begin organization of the division on August 14, 1917. On August 25, eight days later, the work was completed, and he issued General Orders No. 2 officially announcing the organization and the various units which made up the division.

Drace on C. A. Fills Up With Drafted Men From Camp Deven

As a matter of fact the work was done in practically 48 hours of continuous effort, a notable achievement when it is considered that the new division contained 32,000 men, greater than an army corps in the Civil War.

In order to round out his complement the general took men from the Coast Artillery Corps, for which he was recommended by the War Department, and some drafted into the division from Camp Deven.

The division was scattered about

MARY HOPKINS BRIDE APRIL 6

MISS MARY HOPKINS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hopkins of Marlborough, will be an Easter bride, as Monday, April 6, has been the day set for her wedding to Mr. Robert G. McGregor, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGregor of New York. Mr. McGregor has been American vice-consul in Jerusalem and has recently arrived home for his marriage to Miss Hopkins. After the ceremony the young couple will sail for abroad, as Mr. McGregor has been transferred to Paris for three years in the diplomatic service.

Other units followed in short order, some of them sailing from Montreal and the majority from Hoboken. The last to go was the 10th Machine Gun Battalion, which left on the Megantic from Montreal on October 10.

The division was assigned to a training area, in the vicinity of Neuvechateau on arrival in France, with the artillery brigade, ammunition train and trench mortar battery sent to Cœlogne.

Divisional headquarters was opened at Neuvechateau on October 21, in command of Gen. Traub, while Gen. Edwards, Col. Shelton and Capt. Heist went to the British front for observation.

The general spent two weeks on the battle line of the 1st (Highland) Division and the 16th (Irish) Division of the English army, participating in the raid of two brigades at Monchy in Picardy.

The next installment of the life of General Edwards will appear in the Boston Evening American tomorrow and will take up the training of the 26th Division.

B. C. Students to Debate in Waltham

The Fulton Debating Society of Boston College will debate on the topic, "Resolved, That the Two Major Political Parties in the United States have Outlived Their Usefulness," in the North Junior High school, Waltham, this evening, under the auspices of the Margaret Hunt Civic Guild.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE being sent to Mrs. John Hox (Churchy Brown of New York) on the birth of a daughter at Richardson House this week.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM GASTON (Rosaumont Finch) are in Boston, stopping at the Hotel Lenox for a while.

Is Your Baby Worth It?

IS YOUR BABY worth the few cents a day additional required to buy this fine milk, that offers everything that Nature intended milk should have? Of course he is. Your baby deserves the best.

Hood's Grade A Milk is produced, transported, pasteurized, bottled and distributed under a sanitary supervision that guards it every minute from the time it leaves the farm until it reaches your door. Before the milk is produced Hood supervision begins. Every farm is selected for its ability to comply with Hood requirements. Every cow is individually examined and tuberculin tested.

Ten years ago this milk could not be bought at any price. Today it comes to you as greatest milk value you can buy. Of course your babies are worth it.

Let us start them on it tomorrow morning.

The University of New Hampshire and the University of Maine will debate the subject: "Resolved, That the Federal Government should provide for Compulsory Unemployment Insurance" in a broadcast heard on WNAAC at 8:30 tonight. Stations WORC in Worcester and WLBZ in Bangor will carry the broadcast.

Guest speaker on the WNAAC educational series heard at 7 tonight is the Hon. Thomas W. White, collector of internal revenue. He will advise listeners as to the credits, exemptions, deductions and other benefits in which they are entitled under the income tax laws. He will also review briefly the history of taxation from the year 2300 B. C.

Two stage stars will be heard on the air tonight, the first at 8 p. m. over WEEI. Walter Woolf, baritone, will sing a number of songs from his musical repertoire.

Over WREX at 9:30 Grace Hayes, musical comedy, and Thomas and Jeannette star, will sing melodies she has popularized throughout the country.

Radio has been noticeably helpful in wiping away a lot of territorial prejudice. There was time when a cheap tongue Yankee would meet up with a southerner and show some signs of internal life. The southerner, too, didn't seem dignified at the meeting. But now, thanks to the radio, the southerner and the Yankee are in the South than they have in their own native states. Statistics from the chain outlets in the South show that the New Englanders are over there all the time. The radio has been a big help in this. It has been a big help in this. It has been a big help in this.

Who remembers when Ted Huggins worked for Ted Huggins? We get it on very good authority that Ted Huggins was a "talking" too much. When he was discovered, the "talking" proceeded to turn it into a "talking" too much. Ted Huggins was a "talking" too much. Ted Huggins was a "talking" too much. Ted Huggins was a "talking" too much.

Radio's leading crooner in showing unusual interest in television, which will enable him to show without making stage appearances, anyone throwing grapes of any kind at his television set would be very foolish—no?

Drums on the air is getting a big hand. Incidentally, the drums are no of opportunity for resuscitation, young continuity writers have more. We hope it's N. F. T.

Katie Babcock, traveler and African explorer, who has recently returned from a trip to Africa with her husband, William E. Babcock, will be heard on WNAAC tomorrow at 10 p. m. Mrs. Babcock will tell of her adventures on the Ivory Coast.

New Rules to Curb Flow of Alcohol

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—New regulations to prevent further the flow of industrial alcohol into bootleg channels and to permit white sale distilling of high-proof alcohol awaited today the signature of Attorney-General Mitchell.

Dentists will be placed on a par with physicians in the amount of liquor allowed for office use six years ago.

Brandy distilleries would be set up in connection with wineries, and the product placed in the same competition with industrial alcohol.

RADIO Personalities

VAUGHN DE LEATH, "original radio girl," will return to NBC from WMAZ, Cleveland, March 15.

Alvin Karpis, the greater portion of the mail received by ARTHUR ALLEN comes from him.

Richard Gordon, who plays Sherlock Holmes in the radio adaptation, was unable to find the studio in which he had to rehearse for a broadcast.

Whereupon a studio page remarked: "Imagine that! Gordon and he can't even find a big studio!"

LIVINGSTON LARSON, author of the famous "Nick Carter" stories, has been seen around NBC studios.

He is now in the hands of a court suit. Perhaps Nick Carter and Sherlock Holmes will do a double act in the near future.

Edwin Frank Goldman, who plays the part of the late Walter Damrosch in the latter's forthcoming Broadway broadcast, "LUDWIG LAUREL," used to make up and dispense soda in a Buffalo, N. Y., drug store during the Gay Nineties.

ROMAINE GREENE, NBC actress, has been on the air seven years.

The Short Road to Ruin Awaits Those Girls Who Heed Lure of Easy Pleasure

THE DANCE HALL

THE BEGINNING OF THE END for many young girls, out for an evening of harmless pleasure. Under the gaudy surface of the public dance hall, misery, in its ugliest form, lurks. A sip of liquor at the behest of a "good fellow."

SOUTH END DANCE HALLS DENS OF SIN, SAYS GIRL WHO KNOWS

In a series of four interviews, Miss Pauline Bachelder, social worker, outlines the moral dangers that threaten Boston girls. Today, especially for the Boston Evening American, she tells "jazz-mad" amateurs where young womanhood ensnared by man's savvy and "line," plays a losing game.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Shamed girls. Girls who, yesterday, had everything to live for. Today, on the brink of disaster. Girls who can't say no in the face of temptation; who succumb to the lure of sin. Girls unprotected from vice; unprotected from the men who "peddle" it; unprotected from the lurking perils of the city's tenebrous.

An unsheltered home, an unsympathetic mother, offers of "easy money"; desire for pretty clothes and man's expressions of "sweet and sentimental nothing"—and young womanhood goes "the way of all flesh."

TRAGIC MISTAKES

Years of experience working with young girls have brought Miss Pauline Bachelder, social worker and agent for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to these conclusions:

"The dance halls, the automobile pickups, the married men seeking companionship in young girls, many, many years their junior, the promise of good times and pretty clothes, the offer of jobs and fun, the lodging houses which make vice easy, the cafes—these bring vice to the front doorstep of every young girl. These who are unprepared to fall. Those whose parents have warned them, pass them by." Miss Bachelder maintains.

Years of observations, based on actual fact and real tragedies, have taught Miss Bachelder that the public dance halls are a menace to the young womanhood. With the police investigation of the city's vice ring, Miss Bachelder, in an amazing expose of the degrading agencies which rob young girls of precious life, sounds the warning to mothers.

DANCE HALL LURE

"Know your daughter. Make her your pal," she urges. "Tell your mother all about the first tragic experience, horrible as it might be," she advises young girls.

"Public dance halls offer young girls their first start on the downward road," she begins. "Usually one or two older girls, who know the ropes, take a younger she arrives home, another date is made. It is kept. "From the dance hall to the awakening is a short time. But what a number of years it takes a young girl of one road with a beginning and end. So I say keep out of the public dance hall."

And then our work begins, the work of rebuilding, of restoring, when prevention in the home might have saved her. When parental sympathy and understanding, advice and companionship might have saved her from life's scrap heap.

Tomorrow Miss Bachelder will tell of the pick-ups, the automobile masher who imperils young womanhood.

Girls—Take Warning!

THE LURE OF A GOOD TIME

DINNER WITH PLEASANT company is part of the bait. The foundation for advances is often laid in a restaurant.

AN ENEMY IN THE GUISE of a girl chum who invites the innocent young miss to the dance hall, urges her to accept the advances of the vice agent and then chides her with that trite but efficacious plea: "Come on—Be a sport!"

DAVIS BRANDS 'BRIBE' LIE

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—Senator Davis told the Senate lobby committee today that if the reports that a Senator had received $100,000 from a domestic sugar company during consideration of the tariff bill were directed at him "it is a contemptible lie."

The Pennsylvania Republican is a former Secretary of Labor, having served in the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover cabinets. Davis declared it a "lie" that he had received a bribe of $100,000 from a domestic sugar company during consideration of the tariff bill. Davis read a prepared statement after taking the stand. It said:

"If the charges were read into the congressional record yesterday from a metropolitan newspaper, I would state that I never lobbied for or against any sugar tariff measure; that I have never spoken to anybody in Congress, and anyone in government service about putting a duty on sugar; that I never received any money or anything of value for any such alleged service."

"It is a contemptible lie."

"I urge you in behalf of the citizens of the State of Pennsylvania, our public, my family and myself to fully inquire into the matter and make your conclusions public before the adjournment of this Congress."

DAVIS DISMISSES CHARGE

Caraway asked him if he knew D. H. Dalberg, president of the Celo Company. Davis said he knew him in a business way, that he held stock in the company worth from $50,000 to $100,000. He bought the stock from a fellow Wisconsinite.

He said he had never discussed the sugar tariff with Dalberg. He denied he had accepted a campaign contribution from Dalberg.

After the committee broke up, Caraway said the investigation was not ended.

National Anthem Wins Approval of British Labor

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Labor government has no intention of trying to improve the British national anthem, "God Save the King," Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, informed the House of Commons today. There has been considerable agitation for "modernizing" the last of the second verse, in which alluding to Great Britain's "nations" phrases such as "confound their politics, frustrate their knavish tricks," occur.

The government announcement was greeted with loud cheers, particularly from the Conservatives. Snowden public before the adjournment of this Congress.

HEART FAILS, 4 DIE IN WRECK

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 25 (INS)—At least four persons were killed when the Pan-American, crack train of the L. & A. railroad, plunged through an open drawbridge into 30 feet of water here today.

The engines apparently were dead of heart failure as the express sped by red lights and hurried through the bridge, officials said. It was believed that Elisha Crompton, Negro fireman, set the brakes, just before he plunged to death and prevented the pullmans, containing scores of sleeping passengers, from entering the water.

The fourth car, a Pullman containing more than 20 passengers, halted at the end of the bridge with the front wheels hanging in space. All passengers on the train were believed accounted for.

Augusta, Me., Feb. 25 (AP)—A legislative measure to permit issuance of $3,000,000 in highway and bridge bonds under direction of the Governor and council for construction this year, passed the House today.

MOULDINGS GET ATTENTION

After the extensive wood-carving involved in last week's lesson, members of the Boston Evening American Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild should have little difficulty making the simple things described today. The narrow mouldings—no called because of their resemblance to rope—are really fascinating to make.

It will save much trouble and disappointment to select for the mouldings only clear, straight-grained wood, which will have no tendency to warp off either during the carving operations or after it is glued to the body.

SECTION NO. 12

These lessons require exact attention to detail and proportions. There is probably no one part which can either mar or enhance the beauty of the coach more than the rope mouldings. They are the most important details of the coach.

They tend to accentuate the graceful body lines and curves. They give the impression of clean-cut lines as to give life to the mouldings. Take care to have horizontal lines straight. "Line up" is a continuous task. The vertical mouldings of the door should be straight.

The rope mouldings may be made of thin material, and the design suggested, or made by the various methods suggested on the third drawing. It is not at all difficult to make clean-cut lines. The rope mouldings are made of wood mouldings in that they are made to follow the shape of the body contours and thus will lay in place better when glued on. Franks' Gangsters Start for Colimo's Territory to Deliver Load of Beer

"WAIT a minute," Franks demanded. From Scorpino's and the Gouger's piles he took two bills, adding them to his.

How the Story Started

Louis Scorpino, called "Slaughterhouse," champion steer killer of the stockyards and winner of the revolver prize at the butchers' annual picnic, decided to join the bootleg racket run by Johnny Franks. His decision was clinched by the frame-up appearance at Franks' cafe of "Peaches," a beauty of the underworld. He demanded a "rod" and became a member. His inspection of the alcohol plant in a nearby cellar was interrupted by the scream of a police wagon's siren. The door was battered down and the "Cooker" Vronski arrested. He was later released at the instance of the gang's lawyer, Newton.

CHAPTER 6

"The Muscle Men"

Vronski safely freed, Franks and his men continued their secret calling with renewed confidence.

New stuff. More deliveries. Beer, beer, beer. Where the battered Ford once hauled supplies, now new automobiles, with discreet drivers, did the work.

In two years, the trio, their gang augmented, had become a force in Centro—a new Centro.

Gone were the trees that once shaded its main street. Hard-eyed men and women traversed the sidewalks. Johnny Franks' humble steak house was now a garish restaurant, covering half a block. The private office boasted elaborate rolltop desks, upon which Newton, Franks, Scorpino and the Gouger divided their spoils.

"Things," remarked Johnny Franks, "in high, wide and handsome. We got swell new stuffs. We put out every grade of bottled and labeled goods. And the milk route and cleaning business racket is both thriving in fine. You see, Slaughterhouse, I told you we'd mop 'em."

Better citizens shook their heads. They hated the change in the town, disintegrating from a placid home community to a garish underworld haunt.

Divide Profits

But—it was healthy for better citizens to keep their mouths shut. Johnny Franks' new gang saw to that.

Johnny, Scorpino and Newton and the Gouger were meeting this summer night in 1924, to divide the week's profits. Nestled, as cards are stacked, an equal sum was placed before each man.

The change in the men was as marked as in the town itself. Newton, shaved, and well-groomed, looked like his old self, save for the waving hands that betray the continual drinker. Scorpino was in his glory. A gaudy silk shirt, loud stripes in his suit, proclaimed him a nouveau riche among the bootleggers.

Names and titles in this story are invariably fictitious.

YOUTH SAVED FROM MUDDY RIVER

Son of Park Head Is Aided by Others in Bringing the Victim to Safety

Robert L. Long, 20, Holy Cross football player and son of Park Commissioner William P. Long, was the principal hero today in the rescue of a youth who broke through the ice of Muddy River, in the Fenway.

Edward Littlefield, 15, of 20 Winthrop st., Bostony whose life was saved, was taken to City Hospital in a serious condition from immersion.

RUSH TO RESCUE
Aldine Long in the crowd, which was gathered by a crowd of several hundred, were his friend, William Madden, 22, of Tower st., Forest Hills, Notre Dame student and football player, and William J. O'Brien, 40, of 84 Ridgewood st., Dorchester, an employee of the park department.

Littlefield, with two other youths of about his own age, was playing on the ice opposite 25 Audubon ch. when he crashed through. His companions obtained a life belt and made several ineffective attempts to reach him before Long, Madden and O'Brien appeared.

The trio got a ladder, a long rope and a hook, laid it across the ice and hoisted the boy, with Long in the lead.

Long managed to throw the rope over Littlefield's shoulders, but the boy was too weak in the ice and sank, and the water and made him sink.

DRAUGHT TO SAFETY.
Traffic had piled up along the Fenway and a crowd of police arrived in an ambulance from Back Bay station. Littlefield was pulled out and Long, grasping the rope, drew himself out.

Long, Madden and O'Brien were rescued, went to their homes in the city. Littlefield is in the hospital on a vacation as a result of the rescue.

Littlefield's two companions disappeared after the rescue.

TILLINGHAST BANKRUPT
Petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities at $458,185, has been filed in federal court. It was learned today by the Rev. James D. Tillinghast of Bellevue st., Cambridge, husband of Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, immigration commissioner.

The petition is declared by the clerk of the court to have been filed just before court closing time today.

As creditors of the company, the Rev. Tillinghast is the principal creditor. He is a resident of 100 Washington st., new 6474, the Northern Development Co. of 10 North Street, Second St., Miami, Fla., 128493, and Helen V. Robinson of 87 West Highland ave., Melrose 128064.

The filing was on the day before the Rev. Tillinghast watched his wife arrive in for her second four-year term as immigration commissioner for New England.

Home Burns During Musician's Absence
Fire of unknown origin destroyed the dwelling owned by Paul G. Glavin, a composer, Italian musician, at 30 Broadway, near the Newburyport turnpike, Saturday night.

Prof. Pompeo and his family were in the home at the time. The fire was caused by a gas stove, which was turned on by a maid.

The loss is estimated at $100,000.

TRIP ESCAPE IN STOLEN AUTO AFTER SHOT

Louis Bagni Sees God Slain and Beggars for Mercy as Thug Fires

Louis Bagni, filling station attendant, was in critical condition today, victim of a smiling gunman who coolly shot him down in the filling station office at Shore drive and Mystic ave., Somerville.

The smiling gunman, one of three bandits who rode up in a stolen automobile last night, shot Bagni twice as he was rising from a chair with an offer to hand over contents of the cash register. They had just killed Bagni's valuable police dog, Beauty, when the dog leaped at the holdup trio.

CONDITION CRITICAL.
Today, in Central Hospital, Somerville, Bagni's condition was declared to be critical. He has two bullet wounds in his abdomen.

The automobile used by the three gunmen, an expensive sedan, had been stolen a short time earlier in Harvard sq., and was owned by a woman living in Ashland st., Malden.

SMILES AS HE SHOOT

The smiling gunman, one of the three who rode up in the stolen automobile, shot Bagni twice as he was rising from a chair with an offer to hand over contents of the cash register.

They had just killed Bagni's valuable police dog, Beauty, when the dog leaped at the holdup trio.

The two turned and fled to the auto where their accomplice was waiting. They sped away and Bagni staggered to the doorway and collapsed.

SUSPECTS HELD IN TONG DEATH
A week's vigil in Chinatown by narcotic officers ended in a spectacular raid today on a Tyler st. house and the arrest of two Chinese, two suspected of a New York, N. J. racketeer murder last summer.

Led by Inspector Edward Conway and Lieut. Robert Casey of police headquarters, a score of police surrounded the house while the leaders entered the place with a search warrant for narcotics.

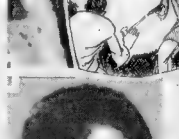

None of the latter was found but the four men were taken on suspicion. Inspector Conway, a veteran of 20 years in the Chinatown district, said two of the men are New York racketeer men who are wanted for the slaying of New York Chinese in a tong war on June 30. The others are Rosin men, he said.

The quartet were taken to police headquarters where immigration officials and Newark police are notified.

Centen Prayer Temptation of Faith

(Read Luke 17:5, 6 and 4:13. Text, Luke 4:13.) Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

At the climax of his temptations our Lord's agitation was intense. It was madness that was knocking at his mind that day, for he was tempted to do a crazy thing, trusting to God to see him through. Truly, he was a man of faith.

Those who propose a rash testing of faith may well give heed to the intimation. We will trust God where we cannot see; but where we see we should employ proper means to attain our end. To obey is better than sacrifice.

PRAYER: Almighty God, who hast appointed laws for our guidance, we pray that thou wilt preserve our faith from the presumptions of folly, that we shall not be tempted.

Centen Prayer Temptation of Faith
(Read Luke 17:5, 6 and 4:13. Text, Luke 4:13.) Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

At the climax of his temptations our Lord's agitation was intense. It was madness that was knocking at his mind that day, for he was tempted to do a crazy thing, trusting to God to see him through. Truly, he was a man of faith.

Those who propose a rash testing of faith may well give heed to the intimation. We will trust God where we cannot see; but where we see we should employ proper means to attain our end. To obey is better than sacrifice.

PRAYER: Almighty God, who hast appointed laws for our guidance, we pray that thou wilt preserve our faith from the presumptions of folly, that we shall not be tempted.

26 INSURANCE BILLS HEARD

Heard on 26 insurance bills most of them having to do with automobile insurance, including compulsory insurance, were heard today at the State House by the joint legislative committee on insurance.

The bill introduced by Frank H. Washburn, Jr., would repeal the present compulsory insurance law and would provide for an additional $100,000 in liability insurance on gasolines to provide funds to meet all liabilities incurred in the operation of automobiles.

The bill was opposed by John W. Downer, representing the Insurance Federation of Massachusetts, who declared "this is really a state fund with another overcoat on."

Dr. Edwin H. Townsend, of Worcester, sponsored another bill calling for extension of compulsory automobile requirements to include $100,000 in property damage.

Downer said this would add $10,000,000 to the compulsory insurance expense now borne by owners.

A division of insurance in the State Department of Banking and Insurance would be set up under another bill, introduced by Atty. James P. McConville.

Killing of Marine Under Probe by U. S.
Resolves of Corp. Joseph A. McDonald of the Marine Corps, who was killed in action in New Orleans, Feb. 17, have made a demand on the government for a full investigation of the affair.

Naval officials have assured the family that the case is being investigated. Corp. McDonald, husband of Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, immigration commissioner, was killed by a bullet from the ship of John A. Macdonald of 11 Cedar st., Somerville, was attached to the U. S. S. Wyoming.

'Flu' Cases Show Drop Below Average
Only one new case of influenza and one death were reported in Boston today with 39 new cases of flu pneumonia in two deaths from that source. The reports were far below the average for the corresponding period of the year.

State Deputy Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan said he felt no danger from the diseases was past.

Confessions Writer Starts Long, Tough Climb Out of Gutter as Readers Cheer!

Author of Confessions Writer's Confessions in six characteristic poses

Rescued From Barrel After Signaling For Hours

When you last heard from me, O valued reader, I was in the gutter. Yes, I was! I was so. Tossed head first into an old barrel. Such a plight might discourage some. But I only laughed to myself in the barrel, and kicked my shapely legs in free—yes, free! I wanted to attract some good, kind, influential man, and start my life all over again. As soon as I was comfortably in his arms, I could begin my career as a confessions writer in earnest. Belles letters was my ambition. I had always wanted to be one.

Let's see. Where were we? Oh, yes. Well, as a Camping Girl I had learned to wig was, so I began spelling words with my legs. First I spelled, "Oh, you kiddy!" I hardly knew how long I remained inverted in that barrel, subsiding on what ever I could find. Life was topsy-turvy in those days—but it was fun. Whom? They, what do you suppose happened? Someone else removed my alippers and kicked my legs. The first thing I knew I was being rescued. Rescued! Back on my feet again! But I could not see my rescuer. Was he handsome? No! He had neglected to remove the barrel from my head. Was I doomed to spend the rest of my days in darkness—eternal darkness? I wonder!

WOMEN IN CONCORD

In the only contest in the annual Concord town election yesterday, the three women nominees were elected to the school committee for three years. Mrs. M. C. Moore and Mrs. Angie M. Dooling received 201 votes and 272 votes, respectively, and Leon J. Fox, the most successful candidate 271 votes.

Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the Navy, was re-elected for another year to the library committee, an office he has held for many years. Only one woman was chosen to town office outside of school committee. She is Mrs. K. C. Hutton, re-elected to the library committee.

TWO INJURED AS TRUCK UPSETS

Daniel McLeod and Joseph Shannon, Somerville city employees, were injured today when the three-ton truck they were on plunger through a fence in Myrtle St., Somerville, and turned turtle into a ditch.

The two men were pinned inside the cab of the truck and sustained multiple cuts and bruises.

According to passersby the truck was crowded to the side of the road by a passing motorist, who failed to stop after the accident.

POLICE AND FIRE OFFICIALS INQUIRY

Second Mysterious Blaze in Same Block Within a Week's Time

Police and fire officials are today investigating a mysterious fire which swept through the rear of a three-story brick dwelling at 15-17 Aberdeen st., Back Bay, driving 17 to the street, some clad only in nightclothes, early today.

Only a week ago another mysterious fire occurred in a building only two doors away and police and fire officials suspect a fire-bug.

District Chief Thomas J. Downey characterized the blaze as being "distinctly suspicious" and reported it to Chief Henry J. Fox and police of the Back Bay station, recommending a full investigation.

The fire started in the rear stairway of the house, apparently under the stairs, and worked up to the second and third floors.

Smoke billowed through the hallways and tenants were forced to escape the way through thick clouds before they could reach the stairways leading to safety. E. W. Cranston was trapped in his third floor room and escaped by a ladder raised by fireman.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holt and their two children, Harry, 10, and Mary, 8, and Mr. and Mrs. William Harris and their son William, 12, were escorted to safety by the police officers.

When Miss Christine Regan, operator at the Melrose telephone exchange, answered a "flash" on the board she failed to receive any answer. The flash continued and listening intently she heard a woman moaning.

Robert Joseph Curran of Melrose police was notified and sent Patrolman to the house of Miss Edith Shattuck, the subscriber. They forced an entrance and found Miss Shattuck unconscious. Physicians were summoned and revived her. She had been stricken with a heart attack and in falling, knocked over the telephone.

Physicians say she will recover.

Osteopathic Hospital Appeals for Funds

The annual appeal for funds is being made during birthday week, March 1 to 7, by the Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital, Jamaica Plain, which continues the work of the institution. Officials estimate the demand for free and part-free service greater than ever before.

It is requested that persons desirous of helping the cause send checks to their osteopathic physician or to Dr. Myron B. Barrow, treasurer of the hospital.

Pair Sentenced in Theft of Auto

Sentences of two months in the House of Correction were imposed in Walworth District Court on Clarence DeWolfe 20, of East ave., West Newton, and William Gowell, 14, of Crafts st., Newtonville, on charges of using an automobile without authority.

Although they had pleaded guilty, both appealed and were held in bail of $500 each. They were arrested in Bedford after a stolen car crashed against a pole.

A BEAUTIFUL FACE on Broadway is as nothing if you don't know how to stand correctly. Here Frances Millard and Albert Lewis, of the Hollywood Restaurant, are showing you the right way to stand.

BONES TO PICK. According to Dr. Elizabeth Edmunds, of Cornell University, most shapely, as well as delicate and housewifely, stand like skeletons and thereby injure their health. Catherine O'Neill illustrates the point.

INCORRECT! "Three out of four Americans stand like skeletons," says Dr. Edmunds. "One out of four has the correct and regal stance." Quite a contrast, indeed, in this photo of Frances and Albert.

ARSON FIEND IS HUNTED

SECOND MYSTERY fire in Aberdeen st., Back Bay, early today started police searching for a firebug after fire department officials declared that the fire at 15-17 Aberdeen st. was of "suspicious" nature. Fireman Joseph Savage is shown pointing to the stairway under which the fire was started. (Staff photo.)

FUND IS SOUGHT FOR PALESTINE

The American Palestine campaign for the Jewish Agency for Palestine which opens shortly in America, will have a two-fold aim, it was announced today. A total of $250,000 will be sought here, and the money being put to use to increase immigration into Palestine, assist immigrants in colonization, home building, extension of school, building and health work.

Endorsed by leaders of the Reform and Orthodox Jews, will be carried on by Zionists and non-Zionists. Ten leading Jewish organizations today an appeal for contributions, declaring serious consequences would result to the efforts being made in Palestine unless the fund is successful.

Fourteen prominent local Jews have endorsed the campaign, including Rabbi Samuel Abrams, Rabbi Louis M. Epstein and Rabbi Harry Katin, of Brookline.

"Selling must achieve a new place in the sun. During the war goods were easy to sell but hard to obtain. Now the reverse is opposite," declared William H. McLeod, advertising manager of William Filene & Sons Co., in an address before the retail board of the Chamber of Commerce in Ford Hall.

Advertising and selling, McLeod said, are members of the same agency of sales promotion, and greater efforts will have to be made to remedy what amounts to conspicuous inefficiency in this division of retailing.

Wall St. Racketeers

Beware of Get-Rich-Quick Proposals

The rise in the stock market has revived the activities of crooks who lurk in the shadow of legitimate finance. James C. Archibald, president of the Better Business Bureau of New York City, warns the public that illegitimate operators have renewed their operations in recent weeks after a long period of more or less idleness.

The revelation during the recent stock market rally that a part of the public is no longer without funds or without courage, brought the financial goads back to prey upon the savings of the ill-advised.

The argument advanced is that get-rich-quick schemes will swiftly restore personal estates which were depleted by the ravages of panic.

Such reasoning is obviously shot through with fallacy.

Unfortunate investors cannot rebuild their modest fortunes on the promises of fraudulent vendors.

They can restore their financial wellbeing only by patient saving through the years and by balanced investment in securities of outstanding companies which are likely to participate in a revival of prosperity.

With the economic horizon still clouded, though betterment is in sight, this is no time for reckless experiment with reduced capital in wild schemes.

Opportunities for sound outright investment in strong, proven enterprises are perhaps never better than during the latter phases of a major business depression.

Financial racketeers have already started out to deprive ill-informed amateur investors of their opportunity to participate in the fruits of recovery.

Recognizing the existing skeptical mood of investors, these charlatans suggest alleged profit-making activities in well-known listed stocks through pool participation and allied activities. These devices are merely schemes for separating the inexperienced from their money.

Amateurs should never deal with strange brokers without making an independent checkup on their integrity, and, when in doubt, can always purchase stocks and bonds through their own bank.

The 'Dope Doctors'

A Challenge to the American Medical Association

When is the American Medical Association going to set to work and clean out the "dope doctors," once and for all?

In every city in the United States today there are at least half a dozen doctors who make a fortune selling dope under the guise of prescriptions.

These doctors are many of them derelicts and drifters—dope fiends themselves and eager to make more dope fiends so they can make more money to buy their own "dope."

But some of these doctors are in good and regular standing. They are the most dangerous of all.

Alma Robens tells of some of these gentry in the story of her life.

Every dope slave who began the habit under easy, comfortable circumstances could tell you a story about some "respectable" doctor who helped him "get the habit."

When will the American Medical Association appoint a special committee to investigate information which is so easy to get that it is almost a joke to speak of "investigation"?

It would be a cruel world indeed without the auspices of a kindly and generous, and for the most part, high minded profession.

We could do very well without the dope doctors.

WHEN ARE WE GOING TO GET RID OF THEM—GENTLEMEN OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION?

Safety Last

Motto of Many

Sir Robert Wilkins, famed polar explorer, has received 1200 applications from men and women eager to accompany him on his submarine trip under the North Pole this Summer.

Sir Robert will use the old navy submarine O-12, now named the Nautilus. It is small. If he accepted all the applications, he would have a crew sixty times larger than the ship could hold.

However, the number who want to go with him is interesting. The voyage is not exactly a pleasure trip. It will be replete with hardship and peril. Yet neither Wilkins, nor his men, nor the 1200 volunteers think much about that. They look forward to the thrills, not the dangers.

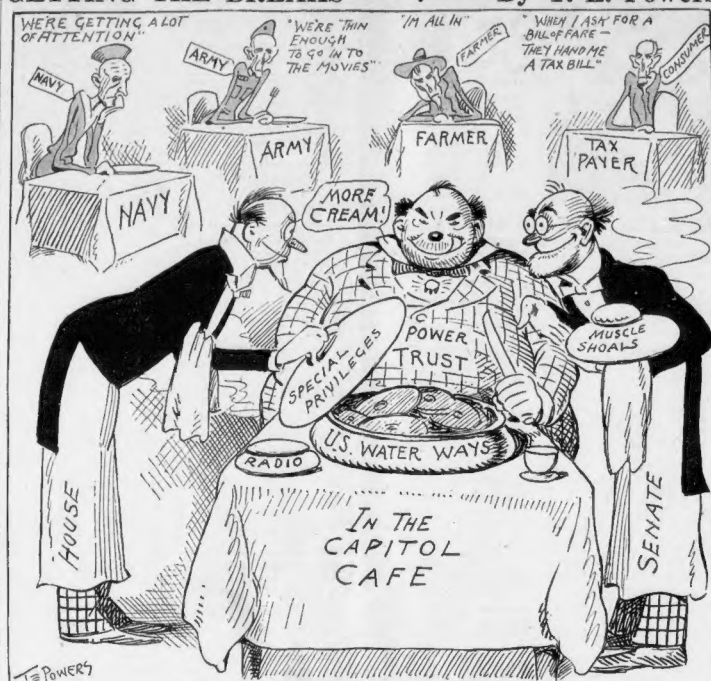

The spirit of adventure is as strong as it ever was. Perhaps it is even stronger. Modern life, despite motor cars and gunnery, is for the most part safe, humdrum, boring. Probably half the population of the country would like to get away from it, if their secret longings could be revealed.

"Safety last" is what they really want, though they may not know it.

LET'S DECORATE, ALSO LET'S SANITATE

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—There are thousands of extraordinarily worth, while folk in the metropolis whom poverty does not degrade, nor does it deface their cultural dignity. Shunted to the backwaters of life, they are not secured by defeat, but are symbols of gentility and charm.

Today in a small shop off the beaten path was an elderly clerk, a scholarly gentleman of obviously aristocratic lineage. He is the type of saintly person the bibliophile might glorify, but seldom do. His humanity blossoms in those simple graces that bring a slight, choice.

After a small purchase we chatted. Overcoming his reluctance, I learned he had studied at Oxford, occupied a responsible post in a Liverpool bank and was untroubled by the war. Penalties he came to America with his daughter, who had a stage engagement. She married and later lost her life in a motor accident. He lives in a half bedroom and his brief relaxing hours are spent in public libraries, art galleries and free lectures. He knew more about New York and its history than almost anyone I ever questioned.

He is but one of many New Yorkers in humble positions—both men and women. Intellectually and by right of birth they are far superior to the poets they fill. I have found them as shoe clerks, cashiers and waiters. No one ever hears their whine. . . .

first efforts received hoots from the intelligentsia—a tooth inker turned literary. Today his yearly income is more than a quarter million.

One of the best moose hunters, too, is that out-dorsey scribbler, Rex Beach. Up in the Canadian woods he found a moose, a mile away, I sat in a coupe, closed and locked, and read the latest copy of Variety. The old playman!

My one experience in wild animal hunting was for the bobcat in 1929—just before the crash—with Mike Hogg on the Texas border. While the dog treeed the varmint, a mile away, I sat in a coupe, closed and locked, and read the latest copy of Variety. The old playman!

Later Major Raymond Dickson, of Bolling and Villa Casas, was regaling cronies at the Houston Club over my presence as a Nimrod. "There's a lad," said the major, "who takes naturally to the kill. He comes from a family of fly swatters."

Writing slaves may perk up at news that Zane Gray, in his own yacht, has set off for Tahiti on a year's deep sea fishing expedition. In earlier days Mr. Gray studied dentistry and dashed off western tales between gang yankings. His

LIBERTY—
You're always clamoring for it—so am I. But I wonder how much it is either of us could stand!

Liberty—What a beautiful vision it is.

What noble, generous acts we'd perform—if we were free! What high adventures we'd dare! How hard we'd work!

We're sure of it. We're sure that the only thing that is holding us back from this abundant life is our bondage to houses, families, law conventions. If we could only shake these shackles, we could stand on our own feet and dictate our own terms, there'd be no holding us. We'd show 'em! But would we—really? I doubt it.

I suspect that if someone handed us all the liberty we wanted we'd be yelling for help before the week was over.

For the truth is—freedom is no picnic. Liberty is the most expensive, the loneliest, difficult and dangerous condition in life. And only the greatest, bravest souls have been able to endure it.

The really free soul must live in "solitary." He can't ask anyone else for instructions. He cannot depend on anyone else for comfort. Hardest of all, he cannot blame anyone else for his shortcomings. He must play a lone hand, carrying his own responsibility, facing his own consequences.

Which is to me the best of arguments for having bosses and being extremely grateful to the thousands of humans who help you play the game.

Once upon a time I wouldn't acknowledge all this. Once upon a time I felt perfectly able to boss my own life, and every one else's.

I even gave God pointers. But I'm all over that now. I know I can't be freed. I know I could be free from me. I know that I'm under an enduring debt to every life that touches mine, and though you might never suspect it, I'm extremely humble and grateful.

Waste of Time

And Much Unnecessary Trouble

COUNT THUN-HOHENSTEIN DOES THIS FOR HIS HEALTH

Many, since the day of Jean Jacques Rousseau, have taken seriously that 'French dreamer's' "back to nature" theories. This Count Thun-Hohenstein goes even farther back. His new "health cult" has his followers walking on all fours, not occasionally, but constantly. Nothing else, he says, is necessary to establish health. "The animals walk on all fours, and look how healthy they are."

True, foolish Count. But healthy horses walk on all fours and rarely live beyond twenty-five years of age. The healthiest dog lives not nearly as long, and so with healthy rabbits and others.

The healthy elephant, it is true, lives to be a hundred and older, sometimes. But there are probably more centenarians among human beings than among elephants.

However, there is "some truth in all error," and there are interesting suggestions in Count Thun-Hohenstein's idea, which, by the way, is a great deal older than the Count himself or his great grandfather.

There is no doubt, according to scientists, that man, "product of evolution," descends from ancestors that once did NOT walk standing straight on their hind legs.

Science can prove to you that we descend not only from lower animals, but from tiny creatures that once lived in the sea. That is why every child likes to run through a mud puddle, and farmers along the New Jersey coast, even before the days of automobiles, made it a point to get to the seashore and swim at least once a year, while the lion inclines to "go back to the water."

That is what the scientists say and add that the human race has had a good deal of trouble adjusting itself to the straight up and down position.

If we walked on all fours, our ribs would hold up our lungs and heart. The strong muscles of our stomach would hold up our intestines.

We have not been standing up straight long, as time goes in the process of evolution, probably not more than a few million years. And, standing straight, all the apparatus inside of us tends to sag down. That is why you see old men and women with protruding abdomens. Weight from above pushes them out.

The ribs, except for protection from blows, are practically useless. In fact, they press on the lungs ninety times out of a hundred, interfering with breathing, which must expand the ribs by force to attain full lung inflation.

But the task of man is to accustom himself to new conditions. He can live safely at the Equator with the lion and the giraffe, while the polar bear would die.

And he can live happy and healthy inside the Arctic Circle with the polar bear, whereas the lion and the giraffe would die. He is an ADAPTABLE creature, and his business is to adjust himself by a little thought and practice to the upright position that is not yet entirely natural to him.

To begin with he should keep his ribs lifted up, not let them sag down and interfere with breathing. In his walking and sitting he should hold the upper part of his ribs out, as though they were pulled up toward the ceiling by a string fastened just below the chin.

The lungs should move freely up and down, inside the EXPANDED RIBS, as breath enters and departs. The lungs should NOT be forced with every breath to lift the heavy ribs.

Men in the past have had consumption more often than women for this simple reason.

Consumption starts, as a rule, in the apices, small upper part of each lung, just below your neck.

Women crouching in their waists, until lately, were compelled to breathe in the upper part of the lungs, and that kept the apices in good condition.

Men bending over, neglecting full breathing, did their breathing further down. The topmost parts of the lungs, lacking oxygen to keep them healthy, developed tuberculosis.

Keep your ribs EXPANDED, your shoulders BACK, breathe deeply, from the bottom all the way to the top.

Even practicing singing, without boring your family or neighbors, for singing develops the lungs more than anything else and is the enemy of consumption.

But don't imitate Count Thun-Hohenstein. It is all right for him, he probably makes a living by it, for there are undoubtedly gasses that pay him for showing them how to "walk this way."

Many foolish women, probably, some old, fat and pathetic, would pay to have a thin waist like this and even try to get it by walking on their hands and feet.

They should remember the advice written on the Greek Temple, "Medias Thous," nothing in excess.

This picture is distinctly "in excess."
